Last week was Modern Disco Ambassadors' 5th Anniversary at La Cave with Treasure Fingers. Balloons on deck, drinks in hand and enough party vibes to share - it was definitely an unforgettable celebration.

Switching between local openers Kedd Cook and Treo, the night adopted heavy house beats at the surprisingly bass-worthy venue, La Cave. Kedd Cook - proving that it is not necessary to play all the mainstream hits to make a crowd dance - dropped a personal favorite, 'Plush' by Tiga which played nicely into some Todd Terje.

There was never an empty moment in front of the decks – whether it be starry-eyed admirers or hedonistic dancers – the atmosphere was perfectly crafted to welcome Treasure Fingers to his headlining position. If the crowd was at its peak at the beginning of his set, he sure knew how to go beyond this to keep them on their feet and guessing. Keeping his track selection varied, Treasure Fingers switched between multiple genres though favored a decidedly disco-house flavor. Track stand-out was a remix of Ben Pearce's 'What I Might Do' which had revelers singing and miming every lyric as if it was their job to make the track a solo-live performance.

If you missed the anniversary, don't fret because the MDA season is not half finished. Tomorrow sees the takeover of New York House-head Manik. Garnering attention from well-respected publications including XLR8R, Mixmag & DJ Mag and spinning at acclaimed venues Fabric London and Cielo NY - this singer-songwriter, DJ and producer returns to Orange County to prove that making people dance is not just his job but his passion.
